

Advance notice:

The Partnership for Global Justice will publish What Price a Girl's Life? in December, 2012. This booklet, with a foreword written by H.E.Joy Oguv, Permanent Ambassador of Nigeria to the UN, is dedicated to the courage of 14-year-old Malala Yousafzai, who was shot because of her efforts to promote education for the Girl Child. The booklet explains how education to promote Girls' Education is the most powerful and effective way to address global poverty.

When a girl is provided with even a basic education, statistics have proven that most not only graduate, but also develop the skills they need to negotiate key life decisions.

When a girl has the opportunity of a secondary school education, this leads to smaller, healthier families, lower HIV infection rates, and higher wages. Educated women are more likely to educate their own children – ending the cycle of illiteracy in one generation.

Watch out for the advertisement on how to get your copy about this newest booklet coming soon from the Partnership.

Deirdre Mullan RSM (Congregation)
Partnership for Global Justice
Deirdremullanun@aol.com